Eliminating Health Care Disparities Through Improved Access

Elimination of health disparities through improved access to health care services is a national health priority. Nevertheless, women with disabilities, who represent 28 million of the US population, continue to experience serious barriers when receiving breast-screening services. As a technologist, it is important for you to assure access to consistent, quality mammography exams to this large diverse population.

Specifically designed by and for mammography technologists, the self-learning 22-minute DVD module and booklet addresses disability topics, barriers to services, and solutions for removing them. It also provides valuable information for improving communication skills as well as demonstrating adapted positioning techniques. The module is also helpful to administrators, radiologic technologists, educators, health care professionals, and staff involved in providing breast-imaging services.

Educational Training Goals:

At the completion of this learning module, you will be able to:

1. Recognize the need for mammography screening and education for women with disabilities
2. Identify barriers to receiving regular mammograms
3. Identify solutions to remove barriers
4. Learn adapted positioning techniques and use of supportive equipment
5. Increase knowledge of effective communication strategies

Self-learning Module Ordering Information

The self-learning module includes 1 DVD, accompanying booklet, and 1 post-test. The cost is $32 plus shipping and handling.

Post-test grading and your certificate of completion are included. An additional test can be ordered for the 1.0 CE for $15.50.
